INTRODUCTION

Birds of Poole Harbour is a registered charity dedicated to boosting the profile of bird conservation, preservation and observation in and around Poole Harbour.

As this tick list proves, we are exceptionally lucky with the sheer number of species that grace our shores every year, with up to c.25,000 waterfowl descending on the harbour every winter along with a bountiful range of spring and summer migrants. Poole Harbour benefits from several protection designations including being a Special Protection Area, hosting multiple Sites of Special Scientific Interest and is also a RAMSAR wetland of international importance. Many of the species in this booklet will be seasonal visitors – the best places to find them can be found on our website (www.birdsofpooleharbour.co.uk) or by downloading our app (see Page 3). This check list includes every species recorded in our Poole Harbour recording area, pictured on the following page.

How to use the checklist

Taxa are sequenced per family, with both common and scientific names given. Poole Harbour Status (e.g. Breeding, Winter Visitor, Vagrant) is given and notable subspecies are listed.

GREAT NORTHERN DIVER Peter Moore

BIRDS OF POOLE HARBOUR RECORDING AREA

To date, 331 species have occurred and have been accepted within the Birds of Poole Harbour boundaries. A further 11 distinct subspecies have also been seen.

There are a handful of historical records, for which there is currently insufficient information to allow their inclusion onto the Poole Harbour list, but are believed to be genuine records. These are noted where appropriate.

Finally, there are a number of feral or escaped species that have been recorded within the Birds of Poole Harbour boundaries. They are included for completeness, but are not included on the Poole Harbour list.
